Wednesday, April 6, 2016

SAN DIEGO, CA—From July 15–17, 2016, AmateurPianists, the world's largest piano Meetup group located right here in "America's Finest City," will host its first piano competition for outstanding amateurs. San Diego will be added to the short list of world-class amateur piano competitions which includes Paris, Washington D.C., and Fort Worth, Texas (home of the Van Cliburn Competition).

This three-day event, which is open to participants over 25 years of age who haven't competed in a professional piano competition in the past 10 years, will be a biennial celebration and a flagship event for our non-profit organization, AmateurPianists.

The San Diego International Piano Competition for Outstanding Amateurs will take place at Point Loma Nazarene University from July 15–17, 2016 and includes a concert, a recital, and an international panel of judges.

AmateurPianists was founded in 2011 by Glenn Kramer to provide opportunities for adults to perform in front of live audiences. Membership is free. For more information, please visit www.AmateurPianists.org.
